

Feeding a growing economy.

City Group
Rice & Dal Mills
Dhaka, Bangladesh.

City Group is one of Bangladesh's leading conglomerates and trusted consumer goods manufacturers. Founded in 1972 by Fazlur Rahman, the group has grown over the last 47 years in value and production capacity. The group has a strong commitment to creating a positive social impact on Bangladesh. It is involved today with the production of sugar, edible oil, atta, various grain flours, rice, dal, as well as animal feed. Today the group consists 40 affiliated companies and more than 15,000 employees.

City Group operates beyond food processing. The company is also a leading local actor in grain logistics, importing grain from outside of Bangladesh, operating a fleet of river vessels that carry raw materials such as wheat and maize/corn further inland. The company also runs an extended distribution network, literally feeding Bangladesh.

City Group first investment in Bühler dates back to 1995 with a first wheat flour mill. This was the beginning of a long term partnership as the company further expanded with Bühler technology with a feed mill in 2002, flour mills in 2007, a soya crushing project in 2011.

In recent years, the company invested in a triple project for paddy-to-rice processing, dal (red lentils) processing and flour milling. The latest investment of City Group in Bühler technology will be for a soya crushing project with a new plant commissioning planned late 2019.

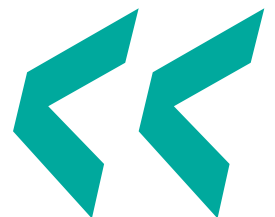

Our vision is all about providing affordable and nutritious food for the needs of the growing population and economy of Bangladesh.

We repeatedly chose Bühler to supply our infrastructure as we believe only their technology can handle the scale of our projects while delivering on the quality expectations we set for our final products.

Shampa Rahman, Director
City Group, Bangladesh

Total solution for rice and dal processing.

On an undeveloped plot the Shitalakshya river, running East of Dhaka, City Group founder and chairman Fazlur Rahman had the vision to build an industrial complex which will allow the company to diversify its business further while also strengthening its operations with a transshipment and grain storage site.

When City Group awarded the contract, the full project was one of the largest worldwide for Bühler at the time. A total of 54 Bühler supervisors, specialists and technologists were involved on the production site and worked together more than 45,000 hours to assemble the intake, storage systems and commission the processing plants. The modules of the plant have gradually been put into operation within a record 3 years.

The plant, located on the river bank, receives its raw material from both ships and trucks from the region. It acts as a flour mill, a dal production facility and a rice mill for both parboiled and chinigura rice, a high-value variety requiring high heat treatment.
